He warned Protestant extremists that any attempt to set up an independent Northern Ireland would only "bring about a bleed-bath" and force Britain to cut off all financial aid to the province. This amounts, he said, to £200 million a year.

In a luncheon speech to leaders of business, trade unions, local government and the church, Mr. Heath said: It is not enough to sit behind closed doors and pray that the gummen will pass you by. Violence will only stop when those who are against violence act to defeat it."

"Terrorists must be given no help or encouragement," he add-"Money must be refused to them. And they must be denied any safe haven within the community from which to operate." Crucial Stage

The speech disclosed the approach the British leader plans to take in private talks with political and religious leaders over the next two days, his first such consultations here since he took office in June. 1970. The prime minister made it clear that preparations for a new form of local. government in the province, to replace direct rule from London, were now reaching a crucial

Any political settlement, Mr. Heath emphasized, "must enable the majority and minority communities . . . to take full part in government in the interests of the whole province." · His remarks left little doubt that Britain will insist on broader representation for Catholics in any new system of local government after direct rule from London ends early next year. There was little evidence, however, that concessions were im-mediately likely either from the Protestant-based Unionist party, which ran the province for 50 years until London imposed direct rule last March, or from opposition groups of Catholics.

Key questions likely to remain unsolved in Mr. Heath's talks here were the shape of the new local government, how it is to Belfast and the relationship of of a factory.

Government sources said it was important for Mr. Heath to be seen here taking soundings and seeking local agreement, but that proposals for any settlement would probably be worked out in

Mr. Heath underscored his distaste for both Protestant and Catholic extremists by refusing to meet their leaders here. But their presence was felt nonetheless. # Final Round of Vietnam Talks Is Expected in Paris Shortly

Le Duc Tho, Kissinger Awaited

By Don Cook PARIS, Nov. 16.—The final round of the Vietnam cease-fire

Le Duc Tho, the Hanol Polit-buro representative at the secret talks will arrive in Paris tomorrow morning from Peking and Moscow, Henry A. Kissinger will be coming in from Wash-ington either a few hours ahead or not far behind.

The expectation here is that the two men may sit down together tomorrow afternoon in the first of a series of meetings, which Mr. Kissinger has said need last "three or four days at the most" to complete an agreement

A key section to be cleared up in this final round of negotiations, it was learned, concerns the site, the chairmanship, and the functions of the "international conference," which is to convene within 30 days after the ceasefire takes effect, and take up a "supervisory role," to reinforce

Contrary to earlier expectstions, Paris now appears to be ruled out as the site of the international conference—to a large degree because of objections by South Vietnam, supported by the United States, that Prench influence in a supervisory role in the peace-keeping would "tilt" too heavily in Gaullist fashion in the direction of the North Viet-

Chairmanship Role If the international conference were to be established in Paris, then the French would not only be the boats but presumably also hold the chairmanship. The United States has therefore pressed that the conference should be held on "neutral ground"that is, not in the capital of any of its participants. According to accepted by the North Vietnamese, but they in turn appear to be ruling out any return to Geneva as the site, for reasons of their own memories of the 1954 Geneva conference, which they have always regarded as a failure from their standpoint.

The participants in the new international conference will be the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council—the United States, the Soviet Union, China, France and Britain-plus the UN secretarygeneral and the three protagonists in the Vietnam war, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government. This makes nine participants in all, and rules out a conference site either in Vietnam or in one of the Big Five

Fighting Steps Up Near DMZ

U.S. Jets Maintain Blitz on North

SAIGON, Nov. 16 (AP).-U.S. planes kept up intensive bombing of North Vietnamese supply lines today, devastating an enemy truck park. Pighting on the northern front was reported the heaviest in two months.

-Air Force and Seventh Fleet fighter-bombers flew more than 270 strikes and B-52s made 30 missions against enemy targets in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam yesterday and to-day, the U.S. command reported. Pilots reported knocking out 68 trucks loaded with ammunition almost half of them in a vehicle park off the main highway near

Quana Khe, 65 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone, The trucks were concealed under thick jungle cover, but were

The raids raised to 1,560 the reported number of tactical air strikes mounted by U.S. planes against North Vietnam since last Thursday, when the blitz was intensified.

The attacks are in response to what U.S. officials call a substan-tial enemy supply push into South Vietnam aimed at beating any cease-fire deadline. B-52s dumped tons of bombs south of the Barthelemy Pass, hitting supply convoys on their way to the Plaine des Jarres in northern Laos, where North Viet-namese troops have been attack-

The U.S. command also reported American fighter-bombers and B-52s flew dozens of missions in support of South Vietnamese troops in battle around the provincial capital of Quang Tri on the northern front. Government marines and airborne battations killed 59 enemy troops at a cost of five dead and 41 wounded, the Saigon command reported. The bodies of 25 North Vietnamese soldiers slain by air strikes were found. A five-hour fight yesterday was the beaviest combat on the northern front since last Sept. 16, when Quang Tri was recaptured from enemy forces who had occupied it for nearly five months. Troop Movement Knemy gunners poured hundreds of shells into government positions to cover what the Saigon command reported was considerable movement in the area. A military spokesman, Col. Le Trung Hien, said the enemy's purpose was presently unclear but he denied knowledge of any North Vietnamese move to pull troops back into North Vietnam. "If there was any movement back across the Demilitarized Zone it would be my assumption that it was a normal rotation of units," he told newsmen.

nounced its willingness to under-take indirect negotiations with Cuba in an effort to end airline hijackings.

State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray told newsmen that the U.S. wished to inform Cuba that it was prepared to take any action that would effectively halt hijackings.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers met this afternoon with Swiss Ambassador Felix Schynder and asked him to convey the American government's views to the Cuban government. Switzerland serves as U.S. diplomatic intermediary with Cuba in the absence of formal relations.

Today's State Deportment declaration followed a Cuban statement yesterday calling for a "broad agreement" with the United States that applied to both hijackers of American aircraft and Cubans who seize Cuban ships and planes to flee to the United States.

However, the White House cautioned against speculation that an anti-hijack agreement with Havana would lead to broad improvement in relations between the two countries.

So. Africa Offers Concessions In Rule of South-West Africa

From Wire Dispaiches UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 16.—South Africa has offered to make concessions in its administration of Namible, a UN report disclosed today, but the proposals have already drawn criticism from black African nations as una cceptable. The concessions on Namibia, known as South-West Africa in the United Nations, were communicated to UN special envoy Alfred Martin Escher during his visit to Pretoriz and South-West Africa last month. Mr. Escher's report to the Security Council listed two main concessions suggested by South Africa:

• The creation of an advisory council made up of representatives of regional bodies in South-West Africa to essist South Africa in administering the territory.

• More freedom of speech and movement for the various indigenous peoples of South-West

Mr. Escher indicated he considered the concessions worthwhile enough to continue the dialogue with South Africa on the future of South-West Africa. However, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, in transmitting the report to the Security Council, did not specifically recommend an extension of Mr. Escher's man-

Instead, Mr. Waldheim merely expressed the hope that Mr. Excher's report "provides a useful basis for the council to consider and to decide on the future course of action. Mr. Escher said: "Although my discussions with the prime minister of South Africa leave a number of issues still to be clarified, I believe that what has been agreed to by the prime minister represents some progress in the direction of achieving the objectiva laid down by the Security Council.

A point South African government leaders and Prime Minister John Verster readily supported. Mr. Escher said was that the contacts initiated by Mr. Waldheim last March and continued by Mr. Escher should be continued.

Mr. Escher said he believed the Security Council should approve a continuation of the contacts to pursue points already agreed upon and "questions which could not be brought to a conclusion as yet." In the latter is eventual South-West African self-determination leading to an independent nation, a subject about which, Mr. Escher said, Mr. Vorster thought it "was not the appropriate stage" todiscuss in detail.

Mr. Escher said Mr. Vorster thought that after the inhabi-tants of South-West Africa. "have had more administrative and political experience," which was "an essential element for eventual self-determination," Mr. Vorster "felt that this [self-determination] could best be achieved on a regional basis." However, the South African system of creating partitions is unacceptable to the United Nations.

seemed to me acceptable in principle, provided that the necessary conditions for the exercise of selfdetermination were fulfilled and at the same time an authority for tha whole territory would be established."

African reaction to Mr. Escher's report was awift in condemnation. particularly on this point. One ambassador said Mr. Vorster's at-titude was "an insult." Another said the results of Mr. Escher's talks were 'far from satisfying.' The Security Council is expected to take up the report and decide on the extension of the talks next

The officials admit to frustration, however, in their attempts to track down some of the bestknown members of the group. Several bave been fugitives for more than two years. On Caribbean Isle

One fugitive, Joseph Edwin Schook, under indictment in Idaho for the destruction of 29 military vehicles, has been located on the French Caribbean island of Martinique. But the French government has declined to extradite him to the United States, on the grounds that he is sought for a "political crime." The Weathermen, now often

Attempt to Alter Soviet Image

Prague Exhibit Shows 'New' Russi

PRAGUE, Nov. 18 (NYT) .- The Russians are offering Czechoslovaks an opportunity to see the Soviet Union in a new light-as a modern society bursting with attractive consumer goods and handsomely dressed young people.

This new image is expressed in a Soviet exhibition, the largest mounted in history in Eastern Europe, that has drawn en the talents and imagination of Czechoslevak artists to: offer a swinging picture of Soviet life.

The challenge facing the organizers was considerable. For one thing, there is still deep resentment over the Soviet-led invesion by Warssw Past forces in 1988; when orthodox Communism was reimposed here to place of the reforms undertaken by Alexander Dubcek, then the party leader.

The 60,000 Soviet troops that remain are a constant preocc tion for many Czechs, virtually the only outlet for whom is jokes about the soldiers. Example: A soldier returns home and describes Prague as backward—"not a single delousing station."

The exhibition's organizers also had to cope with a sophisticated audience, wise in the ways of consumer products. The attitude was summed up by a woman who scanned Soviet industrial goods just inside the entrance and growled, "We were making this stuff before they ever heard of it." Nonetheless, the exhibition, which honors the 66th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, seems to be overcoming at least the resentment and akepticism. This appears to be especially true among those who do not live in Prague; they are really impressed. Westerners familiar with major Soviet exhibitions in Moscow and at international fairs say this is the most attractive they have seen. ## Britain Notes Arms Talks With Egypt

Supplies to Mideast Are Not Embargoed

LONDON, Nov. 16 (Reuters).— Britain is having talks with Egypt on the sale of British military equipment, a British Foreign Office spokesman said here today.

The spokesman answering questions from reporters at his daily press conference, said: "We have been having talks with Egypt about the supply of military equipment. The Egyptians have given us some indication of what they want and we have made clear to them what we would be prepared to supply. Our policy on arms sales to Middle East countries has not changed."

The spokesman said that it was not the Foreign Office's practice to disclose details of arms sales talks. He recalled that Britain did not operate an embargo on the sale of British arms to Middle East countries. But British policy was to insure that any British arms supplies would not upset the balance of military power in that region.

Talks Continue

The spokesman said that the talks with the Egyptians began several months ago and were continuing.

Arab Arms Fund

KUWAIT, Nov. 16 (AP).—Egypt proposed yesterday that Arab countries set aside 15 percent of their national incomes for a collective military plan to include purchase of modern warplanes and establishment of an Arab arms industry.

The Egyptian chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Saad Shazly, made the proposal in a report on the Middle East situation to Arab foreign and defense ministers meeting in Kuwait.

The proposal was directed, in effect, to Arab countries that have immense incomes. Those confronting Israel directly already are spending heavily on arming themselves.

According to conference sources, Gen. Shezly said that pooling of financial resources must be within the framework of a concerted Arab plan to buy modern fighterbombers for Arah air forces. He did not mention any particular source for the Durchase.

Pilots and Politicians

Cuba has put forward a suggestion for agreement with the United States on the much-vexed question of aerial hijacking. Its political importance, as possibly the beginning of an easing of tensions be een Bavana and Washington, is great, and, of course, there are politics built into any aprioach of this kind. Cuba wants some form of restriction on the activities of anti-Castro Cubans in the United States and "illegal" departures of Cubans for the United States.

This may not be the easiest thing in the world to work out, since it brings up the whole matter of asylum and the refugee, just as the United Nations' discussions of international terrorism have bogged down in arguments about the causes of terror. Should any individual or a group who leap the Berlin wall, or set out in a battered launch for Miami, or, for that matter, wade the Rio Grande and flee to Cuba hy way of Mexico -none of them risking anyone's life but his own-be judged on the same basis as the hijacker who places a planeful of innocents in jeopardy for his own purposes, whether venal or altruistic?

The pilots of the world, those whose responsibility it is to see that their planes fly safely from point A to point B. do not see the hijacker in any particular political or social context. All they know is that they, a thing or two.

their ground crews, and those who mannfacture their equipment have given much thought to seeing to it that their mission can be accomplished, and that they, their crew and their passengers can travel about the world on their lawful occasions. They have been elaborately prepared to fight equipment failure and storms. They are aware of the possibly fatal effects of human error. But when those consequences are courted, deliberately, by any persons, that is a crime against all the pilots stand for, as well as a threat to them personally.

Whether the cause the pilots are now sustaining-national and international efforts to control hijacking—can be advanced by grounding the world's planes in the threatened strike may be debatable. But that the cause is good, and that there is such a thing as an international crime, to be suppressed whatever its motives, can be sustained in any objective court of opinion. The pirate still is what the world believed him to be in the days of sailing ships: The enemy of the human race. Not the only one, to be sure, and probably not the worst. But he cannot be tolerated until all the other ills of humankind are abolished, because he makes those worse. In this respect, the pilots can tell the politicians, and the sociologists,

Civilians and Brass

will not exempt the Defense Department much to the good. But his interview with the Washington Star-News revealed a strange quirk in his thinking, one that at Cutbacks in strategic hardware or military personnel can be only "minimal," Mr. Nixon said. Rather, the targets for thinning down must be among "the masses of civilian employees who are getting in the way of each other over in the Pentagon and around the country."

Surely civilians are not all bad for the Pentagon. The fact is that the Department of Defense is now embarked on a far-reaching and overdue "clvilianization" program, to transfer a variety of desk and other noncombat jobs from military personnel to civilians. Strongly supporting this effort, the House Appropriations Committee noted that "in general it is less expensive to use civilian labor even when the basic pay for the civilian may exceed the basic military pay. Costs associated with training, rotational moves and military labor."

Joos such as data processing, supply management, even K.P. dnty rightly belong in the lower-cost civilian sector, though the House committee is wise to insist that any transfer of duties be accompanied by a corresponding reduction in total military persound, not a further padding of the federal

But Mr. Nixon must know that it is really the military brass who are "getting in the way of each other," and this is a the very least is open to dangerous mis- trend which has soured alarmingly in his four years in office. Current budget figures indicate active duty rosters of one officer or NCO for every lower-ranking enlisted man, In 1969 the ratio was one to two. There is now one general or admiral for every 1,840 personnel, compared with one to 2,900 in 1969, according to a study by retired Gen. James M. Gavin.

> With the shift in military manpower toward ever higher grades, the costs in wages and benefits inevitably rise, even without the necessary pay increases of the past few years. Military manpower now accounts for 56 percent of the defense hudget, and more than 80 percent of the increases in defense spending over the past 10 years is the result of higher manpower costs. It is too late in the current fiscal year for any "civilianization" programs or manpower cuts to have much significant impact on this health care greatly increase the real cost of year's spending-indeed, termination costs could even produce a slight increase. The best way to cut defense spending is by deferring deployment of costly, unneeded weapons systems, but since Mr. Nixon's campaign platform showed no inclination to take that obvious step, at least his budget planners for fiscal year 1974 should recognize that the possibilities for cuts in military personnel are far from "minimal." Excess of civilians is among the least of the Pentagon's

Bad Dream Comes True in Uganda

Asians living in Uganda came to him. Uganda's Gen. Amin has said, in a dream. It was an ugly dream and it has now come irne. Up to a day or so ago, meeting the leadline the volatile leader had set for himsell, he had dispossessed and expelled some :0.600 Asians, many of them residents of Iganda for two or three generations. The 'ew thousand iest hehind-most of them with Igandan citizenship—evidently are being ismissed from the towns and sent to rusticate 'n the bush. Whether they are more to be invice or pitled remains to be seen.

Gen. Amin has done a good bit more than proot thousands of individuals, stain his ountry's international standing, and supply white Africa and its sympathizers with a conspicuous and, to them, useful example of pinck racism. He has, by ousting the Asians. conqueted an instant and massive social revolution, exporting virtually the entire middle class of Uganda, For it was the Asians, of course, who monopolized the comnergial and professional life of the fledgling East African state for years past.

Gen. Amin knows this better than myone. That's exactly why he decided to

The idea of expelling the thousands of "Africanize." The way is now clear for Africans to take over the shops, the offices, the houses, the bank accounts, the status of the Asians forced to flee. There are far from enough Africans in place or in training to take over these key economic posltions. In the distribution of them, no little corruption and dislocation is already substantial: The 40,000 African employees of the dispossessed Asians, for instance, are now by and large jobiess. One wonders if the Ugandans' rejoicing in their acquisition of the spoils will survive their eventual realization of the damage they have done to themselves. It is a strange way to "develop."

Most of the uprooted Asians, having British passports, have heen taken in by Britain, which, under the circumstances, is doing a creditable job trying to absorb them. Other Eoropean countries and Commonwealth members have taken some Asians: the United States accepted a few hundred. So many people, so many clans and groups, have been torn from their "homelands" in this century, and before. It is a deep misfortune that Gen. Amin has seen fit to add, cruelly, to their numbers.

U.S. Position on Uganda: A Cloaked Conflict

By Jim Hoagland

KAMPALA, Uganda,—Although the U.S. election has passed, an apparent pre-election attempt by the Nixon administration to deceive the American public continges to have impact in the deeply troubled East African country of Uganda.

The effort involved a decision by the State Department to cloak its intentions to continue financial aid to the regime of President Idi Amin in the wake of Amin's sympathetic mention of Hitler's methods of dealing with Jews after the Munich massacre

While instructing its spokesman, Charles W. Bray, to tell newsmen in Washington that a development loan to Uganda was being held up as a result of American displeasure with Amin, the department cabled instructions to American Ambassador Thomas P. Melady in Kampala to tell Amin. that there was no connection between technical delays that had developed with the loan and his views on Hitler,

Ignored Plea

After Amin ignored Melady's plea that this assurance should be kept secret and released it through the Uganda press, Bray evaded direct comment on the conflicting American positions in Washington and Kampala. But the election is over now and the impact of Jewish votes on foreign policy may have lessened. The United States is clearly pushing ahead with plans to provide more than $6 million in aid to Amin's government, which has shown no sign of responding to any American attempts to moderate Amin's nation-destroying excesses.

Moreover, the aid is being channeled to a government that with every passing day appears to be less able to provide its share of the money and government manpower needed to administer aid

Amin has allowed his army to slaughter off thousands of soldiers from tribes antagonistic to his rule and has apparently encouraged his security forces to eliminate many of the country's best educated men, whom he feared as a threat. The death toll since Amin took power in 1971 includes three and losing either their jobs or ing aid the United States will their lives. The two loans the United States is on the verge of formally awardteacher training institutes and for an animal husbandry project. The fact that they are relatively small does little to mitigate their psychological importance, especially in a time when aid is hard to come by in general and especially in Africa, where a number of other governments have shown themselves capable of administering such loans diligently.

The loans will also follow a statement by Amin last week praising the Palestinians for the intelligence they have shown in hijscking planes. The United States, which has put itself at the forefront of the campaign against international terrorism, has not taken note of the new Amin

One of the two principal arguments that emerge from discussions with those here who support going ahead with the loans are that they were originally offered several years ago, before Amin ousted President Milton Obote.

There is a "moral obligation" on the part of the United States to go ahead with the aid, this argument holds. Only a few minor technical details of signing the loans have been delaying we more influence with Amin and be in a better position to protect the 700 or so American sionaries and businessmen who have stayed on in Uganda.

The implication of this argument is that it might be dangerous to displease Amin by stopping the loans. The Americans who have chosen to stay on are, in effect, hostages. Britain, which currently has about 3,500 citizens living in Uganda (more than 4,000 Britons have quietly filtered out of the country in the past few months), uses the same argument for its attempts to stay on good terms with the erratic Amin.

Amin is set to take over the tea estates of 28 British farmers in the Fort Portal area of Uganda next week. The clear signs here are that Britain has decided not to make an issue of this, even if Amin offers little or no compensation, as he did not to the 42,000

Asians he has just expelled.
While publicly hinting that its policy toward Amin is besed on fear for its nationals still there, Britain is known to have con-veyed to the United States its private view that any possible alternatives to Amin are so much more frightening that the West should continue to try to work

The alternatives presumably are soldiers in the ranks below Amin, who appear to be the only force capable of ending his rule.

This is perhaps, more than any other single factor, the crux of the matter. For all of his erratic behavior and vitriolic words on the Middle East, Amin has not struck at strategio Western interests in Uganda, which because of its proximity to Kenya and Zaire and to the Nile is a strategic country, by African policy standards.

Two aid loans will probably have little effect in protecting the 300 American missionaries who un-doubtedly will want to see their missions through under even highly dangerous conditions from Amin's violent soldiers. But they could help protect a broader political interest.

Diplomats in East Africa already talk of the danger of the new interest shown in Uganda by Somalia, a major Russian aid

Just as South Africa and Rhodesia have profited politically from Amin's irresponsibility, there will be American political forces that will want to deny American aid and support to Amin because his is a black government. But there are far more compelling and valid reasons for a re-examination of a policy of eagerly providing loans that will give a boost to a man who has engineer-

U.S. Neutrality on the Rhine

By C. L. Sulzberger

BONN-All sides agree that the United States is completely neutral in next Sunday's West German elections. Helmut Schmidt, finance and economics minister in the Social Democratic coalition fighting to hold power, adds the interesting comment that Washington only became impartial in this country's politics after President Nixon's inauguration in 1969.

This is less a shift in White House attitudes than an accident in time. Until the Social Democrats, now headed by Chancellor Willy Brandt, drafted their Godesberg program in 1959, their outlook was much more left-wing socialist than now. Among other things it opposed NATO. Since this was a keystone in U.S. policy Washington felt pushed into the

But Social Democratic leaders, dismayed by years in the political desert of failure, realized they had to shed their party's vestigial Marrism and adopt a mild reform program, accepting a market economy, if they were to make headway with middle-class voters. This was done 13 years ago and the results only gradually became evident. In 1965 the State Department was still happy to see the Christian Democrats win. But neutrality was the word by 1969 the last national election.

Although Nixon unfortunately cabled Christian Democratic Chancellor Kiesinger congratulating him prematurely on a "victory" that never materialized in the 1969 cliffhanger, there is no doubt Washington was wholly unprejudiced then. It no longer considered the Social Democrats inimical to U.S. interests. Moreover it had respect and affection for Brandt the hero of West Berlin where he was a famous mayor. Indeed today, when the election primarily being fought on men rather than issues Brandt has a sentimental advantage in America where he is popular, regarded as immensely charismatic, and is helped by his excellent command of English, His Christian Democratic challenger, Rainer Barzel, is less well-known, speaks less good English and has a less striking personality.

The United States—quite epart from its increasingly pronounced distaste for intervening in the affairs of other nations—feels it can work easily with whichever party leads Bonn's next government. It has been dealing happily with Brandt for three years and he and Nixon have a good rapport, liking to joke about their respectively unsuccessful early tries for of-

It endorses the normalization West German relationships with the Eastern neighbors, while recognizing that like any new policy, Brandt's Ostpolitik contains possible hazards. But it feels that it can collaborate equally with a Barzel government. Neither Brandt nor Barzei would help American farmers by asking the European Common Market to ease its restrictive common agricultural policy. Such an idea is politically dangerous here.

In the event of 2 Barzel victory, it is not felt that the treaty between West and East Germany (initialed but neither signed nor ratified) would be indefinitely delayed. Pressures for accommodation between the ideological halves of Europe are seen as overpowering, Anyway, neither Washington nor Moscow would permit any third capital to obstruct their present desire to work with each other.

Schmidt, who voices the Opinion of the Social Democratic leadership and its small liberal coalition partner, thinks that on the personality issue the United States would, in its heart of hearts, prefer a Brandt victory just the way we preferred a Nixon victory in your recent election. His foreign and military policies were predictable along lines acceptable to us. We could reckon with him, and he can reckon with us."

But this is a human foible rather than a policy. Barzel is the first to stress the present neutrality of an American ally which for years clearly preferred Christian Democratic victories here. He told me: "I believe the U.S. government and the White House are absolutely impartial now.

"Of course Brandt is better known to the American public than I am and this is in a sense my disadvantage. But I believe it. is well known that I sit where Chancellor Adenauer used to sit, in a policy sense, and that we still have a clear Western predi-

I asked Barzel if he thought Nixon's recent triumph at the polls would, as a possible token of conservatism, be in any way reflected in Sunday's vote by a boost in the strength of moderate German right. "Not at all," he said. "All Germans consider your presidency is beyond and above party." This may ring strangely in American cars.

Problems Facing the Democrats

By Wm. F. Buckley ir.

NEW YORK-Moderate Democrais are taking satisfaction from the proposed liquidation of Mrs. Jean Westwood, whose four year plan ended in Democratic disester. Eight years ago the Republicans went through the same kind of thing, with regular calling for the ouster of Dear Burch, who was closely identified with candidate Barry Goldwater and therefore with the great Goldwater defeat. Mrs. West. wood says she intends to stay on, that they will have to our her if they want to get rid of her, and that probably they don't have the votes to do it with Dean Burch did not fight pub. licly, but Goldwater loyalists wen certain they could hang on to him if Barry Goldwater stood by He chose not to, for complicated

It isn't known whether George McGovern will enter now into that listless period characteristic Stevenson went into relative; in hiding, issuing only one or two bolletristic missiles to his supporters. Richard Nixon, in 1960, became almost a recluse for a period of months. Hubert Hum. phrcy went an entire fortnight or so the hyperbole goes, without giving a speech George McGovern's behavior is not absolutely predictable, and we cannot know whether he will fight to retain Mrs. Westwood, as the only living survivor of the climacteric of last July in Miami.

In Happy Stride Those of us who are in mo

Her dismissal, after all, would be nothing more than a ritual execution. another agricultural commisser sent to Siberia, unrelated to the prospective emancipation of the kulaks. The only thing the Democratic party could do to eppease American anxiety is torepudiate not Mrs. Westwood, nor even George McGovern, but 500 McGovernism. It is not at all' clear that the party will do this in however. Although the kindergarten forms of socialism were mostly repudiated by the social; democratic parties of Western Europe after their postwar hinges with nationalization, on the whole, and notwithstanding the formal rejection of Karl Marx in the late 1950s by German socialists, they have continued on their way towards state socialism.

The Democratic party has strategic difficulties which are largely the making of the Republican. party. It has, really, no other vision than the socialist's vision. The Republican party, particularly under Richard Nixon, has; accepted the notion of federal responsibility for human welfare. It has done so fitfully, in the empirical to the abstract anproach, as exemplified by the difference between, say, Elliot Richardson's various public- ... health proposals, and Edward Kennedy's.

But you name it, the Republican party is pretty much there: charging government with looking after health, education, old age, child care, recreation. In foreign policy there is no direct ideological line that issues out of existing public differences between Republicans and Democrats. The Come Home America theme of George McGovern got pretty well lost during the campaign, after candidate McGovern was done paying his obeisance to Israel, and to aerospace employees in Texas and California.

What the Democratic party needs at the moment, if it is to provide tough opposition for the Republicans, is not less Mc-Governism, but a great deal more of it. More precisely put, it needs McGovernism without Mc-Govern. Drastic redistributioo schemes without silly arithmetic, Anti-business legislation without opportunistic petulance. In short, a sharp turn towards orthodox or nec-orthodox, socialism.

The alternative is too dizzying to contemplate. It would involve a genuine rediscovery of the ideal of the community, of the primacy of the individual, of the spontaneity of the private sector. A genuine revulsion against overweaning government. For a government stalled by the Republican co-option of New Deal gradualism, and public hostility towards socialism, one might hope that a new Democratic radical would emerge calling attention to something much more exciting than the replacement of Mrs. Westwood. Perhaps someone will move that Vivien Kellems replace her? A dream, no doubt. But the Democratic party has just finished proving that it has no objections to subsidizing dreams in national campaigns.

COPENHAGEN. Nov. 16 (AP).—Queen Margrethe II of Denmark today told a historic royal press conference that it is a good thing that the monarchy has come up for debate, but that she has found monarchial life a very rich life and considers it a "job for life."

On the other hand, Prince Henrik, the queen's French-born consort, admitted that being the monarch's husband was "the hardest job in the world." but that he had come to like it. Switching fluently between Danish, Swedish and English, the 32-year-old queen kept more than 100 newspapermen in-terested, amused and generally happy with answers for threequarters of an hour at the first press conference ever held

Poor Readers Found Before Reading Age

U.S. Test to Allow Early Treatment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP). -A university researcher said yesterday that he has developed an early warning system that spots children with learning difficulties, even before they enter

If the test holds up under further investigation, said Dr. Paul Satz, of the University of Florida, educators could begin applying remedial measures before youngsters fall behind in reading and writing skills.

Difficulties in reading can have shattering impact on children in later years," Dr. Satz said at a news briefing arranged by the U.S. National Institute of Mental Health.

A two-year study of 500 white boys in Alachua County, Fla, tested in 1970 before they entered kindergarten and again at the end of the first grade, correctly predicted reading abilities of 91 percent of the pupils, he said.

The tests correctly classified 100 percent of those with reading handicaps and 95 percent of those with superior skills.

Responsive to Change

"The present findings provide preliminary support and encouragement for remedial intervention approaches at a time before the child begins formal reading. at a time when his central nervous system may be more plastic and responsive to change. and at a time when he is more free of the frustrations and emotional turmoil associated with repeated academic failure," Dr. Satz said.

Boys were chosen for the study because they are more likely to suffer from dyslexia, or reading disability. Dr. Satz said, Couservative estimates place at least four million U.S. grade school-children in that category, he

U.S. Panel Fears Cancer Increase

Tighter Radiation Safety Standards Urged

By Thomas O'Toole WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (WP). -A panel convened by the National Academy of Sciences concluded yesterday that federal standards for exposure to radiation must be tightened up if the United States is to avoid an increase in cancer deaths over the next 30 years. Calling the guidelines for exposure to radiation "unnecessarily high," the academy panel strongly recommended that the federal government re-examine public exposure to X-rays, nuclear medicines and other man-made sources of radioactivity. A 470-page report released by the academy's Advisory Commit-tee on the Biological Effects of Ionizing Radiation offered no alternate radiation guidelines, but declared that current standards "grew out of an effort to balance societal needs against genet-

'It appears that these needs can be met with far lower average exposures," the panel went "and lower genetic and somatrisk than permitted by the current Radiation Protection

The committee estimated that if the U.S. population were exposed to the 170 millirems (the amount of radiation in about four chest X-rays) a year of radiation, now considered the maximum to maintain safety standards, anywhere from 1,100 to 27,000 Americans would become afflicted with serious, genetic-linked diseases. Effects of such exposure to radiation among the entire populace could include an additional 6,000 deaths a year from cancer, the committee said, which would be an increase of 2 percent in the nation's spontaneous cancer death

The committee came down hardest on the growing use of radiation in medicine, which it said made up the largest fraction of the dose from man-made radi-ation to the public.

"Medical radiation exposure can and should be reduced considerably," the committee concluded, "by limiting its use to clinically indicated procedures utilizing efficient exposure techniques and optimal operation of radiation equipment." The committee estimated that

129 million people received 210 million radiological examinations in 1970, which it said was an increase of about 2 percent a year since 1964. While the committee agreed that many of these examinations were necessary, it also suggested many were not. Among the procedures the committee suggested were unnecessary were "mass chest radiography" for lung cancer and possibly tuberculosis, mass radiography for gastric cancer, routine pre-employment radiography for food handlers and possibly mammography screening for breast cancer ward the reduction of medical radiation dose to the pregnant or potentially pregnant female, the committee said, "as well as to testis shielding in men, since we expect the human male to be much more susceptible to radiation-induced mutation than the human female."

Jerome Robbins at a Gala

By Oleg Kerensky

LONDON, Nov. 16 (IHT),—The Royal Ballet's annual gala performance at Covent Garden lest night was a blg success, despite rather than because of the British premiere of Jerome Robbins's latest Stravinsky ballet, "Requiem Captieles"

Whatever one thinks of this austers music and the jerky, self-conscious movements Robbins has set to it, it certainly is not gais material. Some people found it moving. "Requiem Capticles" is one of the innumerable new works eloged by the New York City Ballet for its Stravinsky week in June. It uses a corps of 15 dancers in black practice dress, varied by different amounts of decolletage, four soloisis whose black is relieved by varied patches of mauve and two singers and the opers charus, with the orchestra in the oit. Mostly the dancers form groups, jerking their arms and hands at odd angles, shuffling along the floor in kneeling positions, or standing in fear with their mouths open at the end. I was reminded of some of Balanchine's more modern works, and even of Anna Sokolow. Obviously Robbins intended to be spiritual and profound: For some people he may have succeeded. I prefer him when he is bring entertaining, poetic or theatri-

It wasn't just delight that Ashton is back at the Royal Opera house, even if only for a short cala item: It was also appreciation of a work which :s similar to three of the Royal Ballet's most recent works-Ashton's own "Slesta," Macmillan'e "Ballade" and Hynd's "A Walk by the River"-but infinitely superior to any of them. The new work has the advantage of Merle Park and Darid Wall, both marvelous dancers. and of a very attractive and ingenious abstract décor by William Chappell. It starts with two lovers on the ground in the sun, it moves through a series of rhapsodic jumps and liftseffortlessly performed—and ends with a sudden transformation scene and the lovers finding themselves enveloped in the cloak of death. The program note describes Delius's music as an orchestral "Liebestod" for doomed lovers, and that is presely what Ashton has translated into visual terms.

The gala also featured the guest appearance of Natalia Makarova in "Les Sylphides" and the "Don Quixote" pas de deux, and a revival of Ashton's "Birthday Offering" with a cast headed oy Margot Fonteyn. Makarova was light and romantically stylish in "Sylphides," helped by the partnering of Anthony Dowell, hut not by rather pedestrian orchestra playing. She was stun-ningly carefree and vampish in "Don Quixote," balancing brilliantly and scaring into the air in jetes and in some exciting one-handed lifts on the arm of the admirable Donald MacLeary. The Royal Ballet has no ballering who can rival such strong personality, versatility and reliability. PARIS, NOV. 16 (IRT).-"Congratulations, Dr. Gucci. We are proud of you," President Nixon wrote to Aldo Gucci, president of the Gucci leather firm, when it received an award from years ago.

That award, presented to Mr.

Gucci by Mrs. Nixon, was for the design of the firm's dooble-G trademark. Last week, the Gucci New York store brought another honor to the firm when it won the Fifth Avenue architectural award as the best store built on the avenue in 1971. Yesterday, a replica of that store was opened at 27 Fanbourg Saint-Honore with a bash that had 1,500 people trooping through its three levels.

Sloppy editing, awkward confrontations, dull and obvious camera technique-all are the director's responsibility. You can almost feel the actors asking for stage management. They don't get it—and that, in a work not without some interest, seems a pity." Some of the acting is very good, according to Greenspun. Notably, Peggy Pettitt, a newcomer, as a "quite complicated" Billie Jean.

"1776," directed by Peter Hunt, screenplay by Peter Stone, adapted from his Broadway musical play based on a conception by Sherman Edwards, won reluctant praise from Vincent Canby. "The music is resolutely unmemorable. ## K. to Relax Bundesbank Asks Bonn To Tighten Fiscal Line DJ).—The Bundesbank warned today that its restrictive credit policy could fail if it is not supported by a similarly restrictive economic and fiscal policy.

In the latest monthly report, the central bank questioned whether current budget plans for 1973 of federal, state and community anthorities are already adjusted to the need of regaining stability.

"It appears unavoidable," the Bundesbank said, that these

Japan Bank To Maintain Neutral Policy

TOKYO Nov. 16 (AP-DJ) --The Bank of Japan has no intention of changing its "neutral" policy of neither helping to create nor to restrain the growth of liquidity despite accelerating rises in wholesale prices, Tadashi Sa-saki, the central bank's governor,

His comments, to a convention of regional bankers, were mainly a reiteration of recent similar statements. As in the past, the statements reflected the bank's growing frustration over being unable to deviate from its present credit policies despite changing economie circumstances, largely because of domestic political considerations.

At a press conference, Mr. Sasaki labeled spiralling wholesale prices as "a constant source of concern," but he said October's 1 percent rise in the price index from September did not surprise the bank.

The hank is in "a tight spot" in trying to maintain what is entially an easy-money policy in the face of rising prices, Mr. Sasaki said. But he said the price problem cannot be solved by monetary action alone. The governor said other measures, such as import decontrol, must

MITT officials concluded that inflation overseas and rising prices for some raw materials, such as wool, are putting upward pressure on Japanese prices. rather than relieving inflationary

Earlier this autumn, Mr. Sasaki indicated several times that the Bank of Japan would have liked to switch to a more restrictive credit policy, but this idea was vetoed by the Tanaka administration. Japan's political leaders have just dissolved the lower house of the Diet in preparation for a general election next month.

They are simultaneously attempting to deal with a persistent vir-plus in the balance of payments. Easy money is regarded as necessary to contend with both situations. Mr. Sasaki said that despite recent price increases, he does not think an inflationary psychology has established itself in Japan. There is still plenty of industrial capacity available to meet growing demand, he said.

Not So Optimistic Other observers are not as optimistic, howover. Mitsubishi Bank, in its monthly review for November, said that its econo-mists believe that an increasing gap between Japanese wage increases and productivity advances indicates that wholesale prices "are starting to assume a character unlike that of the past, of rising at a faster rate than the pace of expansion in the economy."

FRANKFURT, Nov. 16 (AP- budget plans drafted in the summer and early fall will have to be revised "in line with a more restrictive policy." In face of a consumer price rise in October of 6.4 percent from a year earlier, all efforts mist be aimed at speedily cutting price rises. Otherwise, the bank warned, inflationary trends will be accelerated. The bank said its Nov. 2 decision to raise both the discount and the Lombard rate were moves in the right direction. "But," it added, these measure would "ultimately remain without success unless they are supported by similar measures in the areas economic and fiscal policy." Economic Upswing

The latest economic indicators show, the bank said, that in line with a moderate economic upswing and high ntilization of all available production factors, the upward trend of prices accel-

The major impetus for this economic upswing comes from private consumption and demand for new homes as well as from increased foreign orders received hy industry, the bank said.

While the growth rate in capital spending by domestic industry remains at a slow pace, the bank said, current 1973 projections point to considerably higher expenditures next year.

. Several corporations seem to face the problem of not being able to raise production with the labor force at their disposal, the Bundesbank said.

Requests from firms for more workers at government labor offices increased considerably in September and October, the bank reported. The number of unemployed persons, small in itself, amounts to only one-third of the number of jobs available, it noted. Rarely, the bank added can corporations fill vacancies with those persons registered as jobless. More foreign workers must be brought in, the bank said. It also reported that the sea-sonelly-adjusted industrial order inflow in September rose 1 percent from both August and July and was up 5.5 percent from a year earlier. Industrial production, seasonally-adjusted and excluding the building industry, was 2 percent higher in September than in August and July and rose nearly percent from a year earlier.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

FTC Opposes Pepsico Bid

The Federal Trade Commission has challenged the proposed acquisition of Rheingold Corp. hy Pensico Inc., contending that it might substantially lessen competition in the soft-drink industry. The commission issued a complaint alleging possible violation of anti-trust laws and docketed the case for trial starting Jan. 3 before an administrative law judge. The commission took no action to prevent Pensico's continued acquisition of Rheingold stock, under way since Oct. 25. Instead, the commission instructed its legal staff to seek a court injunction prohibiting Pepsico from taking any other action that would make it difficult or impossible for the merger to be dis-solved later. The complaint is concerned mainly with a potential monopoly of the market for soft-drink concentrates—the "syrup" to which carbonated or plain water is added to make the beverage. Pepsico and six other large companies accounted for 84 percent of the $450 million in total concentrates sales in 1971. Rheingold moved into the field in 1970.

EEC membership next year and the best tax concessions in Europe will attract even more industries to Ireland.

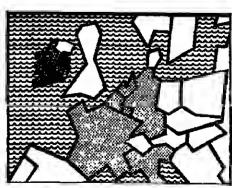

Already many European firms have set up or re-located in the Irish Republic. They enjoy many advantages, not the least being full exemption from taxes on export profits for fifteen years. In the EEC, Ireland's tax incentives will remain the best in Europe, with duty-free entry to a market of 260 million (60 million of them right next door). Other benefits:

Workers. Excellent production workers immediately available, intelligent, keen and easy to train. Grants. For sites, buildings and new plant, for training workers, for research and development.

Factory Buildings. Modern factories with full facilities are available at favourable rents.

Transportation. Excellent uncrowded highways. Container service to British and Continental ports. Immediate access by air to world markets.

For complete information on all aspects of setting up industry in Ireland call Niall Mooney at Paris 256 00-49 or John O'Sullivan at Cologne (0221) 37 31 00 or Eoin O'Sullivan at London 01-629 4214.

Business.

The business community throughout Europe relies on the Herald Tribune for essential world-wide business news. Day after day.

The following are extracts from the annual statement to shareholders, datad October 20,1972, by the Cheirman of Roan Consolidated Mines Limited, Mr. Dominic C. Mulaisho.

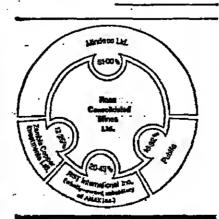

The year which ended on 30 Juna has seen continued progress by RCM in its expansion projects and in the rahabilitation of Mufulira mine. Total mine production increased by over 9 000 tonnes of recoverable copper compared with the previous year despite mining problems at conditions. Finished copper production was, however, adversely affected by e temporary shut-down of the Mufulira electric furnace resulting from damage by fire, end this, together with the need to build up process stocks, caused a slight fall in saleable production.

In the field of industrial relations, I em glad to report that co-operation between employees and menagement has been excellent. In the past year RCM's operations were not interrupted as the result of any industrial dispute. On the other hand, losses of experienced and skilled employees and difficulties in recruiting replecements for them are a continuing cause for concern.

In the financiei field, it is encouraging that e number of international loans have been negotiated towards the company's expansion programme. However, the continuing low level of copper prices in the face of rising costs has been disappointing. There have been some signs of a resurgence of industrial activity in the world, and it is to be hoped that this trend will continue end bring about a rise in the price of copper to healthier levels.

PRODUCTION AND SALES Mine recoverable production of copper was over 9 000 tonnes higher than in the previous year, as shown in the figures

ine production
	1971/72	1970/
Mufulira	98,352	75 34
Luenshya	84158	10179
Chibuluma	25 803	24.68
Chembishi	35417	3279
Kalengwa	12868	1046
	254 398	245 07

Finished copper production at 242 790 tonnes was lower than last year's 250 355 tonnes because of the increase in overall process stocks caused partly by smelter problems and partly by the increasing production rate.

At Luanshya, production was substantially lower due to mining difficulties, but at all the other mines there was en improvement With the continuing recovery at Mufulira, a further rise in company production is expected in the 1972/73 financiel year. The year's sales emounted to 242 475 tonnes. A continual review of the stocks in transit between refineries and customers ensured that these stocks were maintained at the lowest possible level.

FINANCIAL:

Seles revenue for the year included K185.8 million (K765 per tonne) from the sale of million (K765 per trange) from the sale of copper compared with the previous year's K212.1 million (K822 per tranne). Revenue from the sale of by-products was K5.1 million (K6.6 million). The cost of sales of copper was K136.7 million (K564 per trans). K133.8 million (K519 per tonne).

The net after-tax profit of the company was K43.8 million out of which K12 million has been transferred to a reserve for capital expenditure, KO.5 million to debenture stock redemption reserve and K10.5 million to general reserve. The balance of K20.5 million has been made available for distribution to shareholders.

Four guarterly dividends emounting in all to K1.23 gross per shere (K0.6765 net after tax) were declared, representing 47 per cent of the net profit. The dividends were affected by the heavy capital expenditure on the Chambishi and Baluba expansion programmes which are being partly financed from retained profits. The total cost of these projects is now estimated at about K80 million.

To help finance these projects and other large capital expenditures, medium and long-term loans amounting to K27 million have been negotiated. In addition, credit facilities have been negotiated against overseas equipment purchases and contractor costs amounting to ebout K35 million, and overseas acceptance credit facilities have been established amounting to ebout K18 million.

In December Zambia's currency was fied to the US dollar instead of to sterling, constituting e devaluation in relation to sterling and some other currencies. Following the "floating" of sterling in June, the Kwache, which has a parity of US $1.40, was worth £0.58 at the time of

COPPER MARKET

Copper prices fluctuated less than in recent years. The year's everage RCM price, which is still based on the London Metal Exchange cash wirebar price, was about K788 per tonne, end monthly everages ranged from about K897 in November 1871 to about K828 in Merch 1972. Prices have fallen egein since March, and at the time of writing are in the region of K740 per tonne.

The statistical balance between copper supply and demand has remained one of surplus, but the size of the surplus seems to be modest. LME stocks rose during the year from about 100 000 tonnes to 158 000 tonnes at the end of June and have since risen to 173 000 tonnes in early October, Howevar, both consumer and producer stocks are low Although the United States economy has recovered noticeably, the performences of the European and Japanese economies, and consequently their copper consumption. have been disappointing.

OPERATIONS.

Mufulira Division Good progress has been made on rehabilitation of the mine. A great deal of mud has been removed from the mine workings end many items of equipment have been recovered. renovated and brought back into service. Specialized equipment for pumping mud from the lower perts of the Peterson shefts system has now been installed and is being commissioned. Once desludging of the Peterson shafts has reached the 826m level, work will begin on the rehabilitation of the main pump station there to replace the present temporary installetions with permanent pumping equipment. All three shafts of the Peterson system were re-commissioned during the year down to the 810m level. With the re-establishment of access between the Peterson and No. 14 shafts on the 810m level, work has restarted on the construction of the lower loading complex'st No. 14 shaft.

Mine production is now running at approximately 10 000 tonnes of copper per month end is expected to increase to about 12 000 tonnes by June 1973. The rate of increase will depend very much on the auccess of the Introduction of mining methods incorporating sandfill. At the refinery, No. 4 tankhouse was commissioned ehead of schedule in August using conventional direct current to provide additional toll refining capacity. Electrical equipment for conversion to periodic current reversal will arrive later this year Mufulra has carried out considerable development work on the periodic current reversal technique of electrolytic refining and this shows that refining capacity can be significantly increased at low capital cost without loss of copper quality. Some other copperproducing countries are showing interest in benefiting from our work.

Other

Luanshya Division During the year difficulties were experienced in underground mining operations and these problems era likely to continue. Mineralization has shown unexpected irregularity in the areas west of MacLaren sheft and around conditions in several areas have been poor resulting in a slower rate of mining and increased dilution. Work on the Baluba section has continued at e satisfactory rate. No. 1 shaft has been commissioned and the service ramp hea been connected with the 120m level. The new surfece railway to transport ore to the Luanshya concentrator has been completed and construction of the concentrator extension is well edvanced. Production from the Baluba section is expected to begin in Jenuary 1973 and gradually to increase until an ennual rate of about 22 000 tonnes of copper is achieved.

Chibuluma Division Exploration to prove possible extensions to the Chibuluma West orebody has been intensified during the past year initial results are encouraging but it is still too early to say whether enough extra ore will be found to edd significantly to the reserves of this small but high-grade mine.

The development of underground mining at Chambishi and the associated extension to the Chambishi concentrator has continued throughout the year. No. 3 shaft, due for commissioning in the latter part of 1975, has now reached a dapth of just over 260 metres. Progress in this shaft has been disappointing but every effort is being made to increase the rate of sinking and present indications ere that ground and other conditions are good. Construction of the extension to the concentrator is well advanced and it is expected to be commissioned during the second half of 1973.

Operations of William great howe continued setisfactorily and the 400-killometre access road on which ore and concentrates are transported to the Copperbetchas been well maintained by the Zambian Government.

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Industrial relations continue to be good and no time has been lost through disputes since May 1971. This situation is in part due. to the settlement of disputes at the lowest possible level and to more efficient of joint consultation and briefing groups. lationships with the Mineworkers' Union of Zambia at both head office and branch level have been cordial and contacts frequent.

During the year we joined with Mindeco and Nchange Consolidated Copper Mines Limited in establishing a unit to co-ordinate Zembianization, training and manpower planning on an industry basis. We are confident that this unit will record notable. achievements in speeding the pace of Zembianization, an objective which, naturally, we wholeheartedly support. All our mines have been reducing their expatriate staff steadily as Zambianization proceeds through the industry end economy is being exercised in the use of our small cadre of skilled and experienced employees, Zambian and expatriate, in the production and training functions. The stabilization of the Zambian work force has been a notable feature of recent years and I hope that we shall be successful in measures to reduce the turnover among expatriate employees.

CONCLUSION

The progress made in the rehabilitation of Mutulira is encouraging but much remains to be done. It is still too early to make firm predictions of output in future years, for much will depend on the success of the sandfill mining methods now being introduced. However, it is hoped to epproach the pre-accident rate of 165 000; tonnes a year by mid-1974.

In addition to increased production arising from the rehabilitation of Mufuling the development of the Baluba section of Luanshya and of the underground operations at Chambishi will add 22 000 and 24 000 tonnes a year respectively to the company's capacity. Teken together, it is expected that by 1975 RCM's production? will be of the order of 370 000 tonnes a

Although there is continuing evidence of e surplus of supply over demand, I see no reason to after the opinion I expressed e year ago that we should look to the long-term trends in world consumption of copper rather then the short-term fluctuations of the market.

It is with this in mind that production in Zambia is being expanded as quickly as possible.

I should like to convey my personal thenks and appreciation to all those who in their different ways have contributed loyally and willingly to the prosperity and progress of the company end Zambia.

Roan Consolidated Mines Limited is incorporated in Zambia. Copies of the fulf text of the Chairman's statement, together with copies of the annual report and accounts, can be obtained from its London representatives, the Secretary, RST International Metals Limited, One Noble Street, London, EC2V 7DA.

THE CAMERONS

By Robert Crichton, Knopf. 509 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

"The Camerons"—when Mag- good, we think. gle Drum awakes in the dark, cold, still world from which she is so determined to escape—you can see that Robert Crichton, the author of "The Secret of Santa Vittoria," knows exactly what he is doing. Sure, it's been done a thousand times beforethe story of the poor girl trying to rise in the world by dint of hard work and a shrewd marriage. Sure, it all sounds familiar-from the hoard of money buried beneath the cottage floor to the climactic confrontation bethe downtrodden coal tween miners and their cruel masters. Sure, "Row Green Was My Valley" comes to mind, and Emile Zola's "Germinal," and even Ernest Hemingway'a Old Man and the Sea" (when Maggie's husband, Gillon Cameron, steals off to posted waters eatch a 50-pound salmon for his starving family's Christmas dinner, only to lose most of the fish on the dangerous journey homeward). Sure. Mr. Crichton pulls out all the conventional stops—there is the uneducated bero painfully learning to read Shakespeare, there is the long Dickensian deathbed scene and

But from the very first parathree diamonds and only two graphs, when the cold and the poverty to which Maggie Drum awakes becomes palpeble on the page, you know that Mr. Crichton knows what he is un to, and that "The Camerons" is going to play the game of fiction by conventional rules, it is elso going to make the most of those rules.

there is the trial in which the oppressed miners finally get their day in court.

And thus it turns out precisely. Following the conventional rules, Maggie Drum gets out of bed, puts on the new tweed suit for which she has scrimped and saved and sets forth from the mining town of Pitmungo, Scotland, to catch herself a husband. Following the rules, the husband she snares is an eristocratic Scottish highlander. Gillon Forbes Cameron, whose family has fallen on hard times (although the scenes in which Maggie woos Gillon are distinctly unconventional in their warmth humor and vivioness). Predictably, the couple return to Pitmimgo, and confidently we settle down to watch their rise in the world. certain that the combination of her toughness and his breeding will prove unbeatable.

But do they rise? Well, yes and no-and here is where Mr. Crichton hegins to exploit the conventions and toy with our expectations. Maggie and Gillon beget seven unusual children, and that is good, we think. Gilion develops into the most skillful miner in town and begins to educate himself, and that is good, we think. Maggie manages money shrewdly: she contrives ways for the family to earn money outside of the mines; she stashes a quarter of all the Camerons' income in that chest (or "kist") under the floor; she acquires the option to buy a mining-equipment husiness, which she hopes will set them all free

FROM the very first page of from the pits—and that is very

But somehow, the Camerons don't rise far enough to get free. Somehow, their very virtues seem work against them. The children are all so ambitious and successful that they antagonize not only the rest of the mining community, but the managers of the mine as well. (For instance, in a particularly engrossing episode, Sam Cameron sets out to win all the track-and-field events in Pitmungo's annual holiday games; when he succeeds he is greeted with numb resentment.) Gillon works so hard ot improving himself that he is forced to recognize how the miners are exploited, which sets him on a collision course with management. Maggie becomes so obsessed with filling her "kist" that she becomes blind to what is happening around her. The family begins to fall apart. And because the literary conventions that Mr. Crichton is exploiting have led us readers to expect the best, we are all the more frustrated when events turn out for the worst.

What or whom, are we to blame for the failure of these appealing people, the Camerons? Mr. Crichton knows exactly what and whom to blame—the mine owners and the system they have foisted on the workers. And so, switching from the conventions of the family chronicle to those of the proletarian novel, he devotes the second half of his novel to the inevitable eccident that befalls Gillon; to Gillon's demand for compensation, which is of course callously refused; to the lockout that occurs when Gillon works up the courage to sue the cruel owner of the mine, Lord Fyffe; to the test of strength be-tween the workers' solidarity and the owner's selfishoess; to the dramatic face-to-face confrontation between Gillon and Lord Pyffe (a marvelous scene of little ironies and small turnabouts); and to the climax of the court

But again, Mr. Crichton toys (187) with the conventions. And if we expect any of the predictable resuits, we are wrong. Instead of heroics, we get human weaknesses. Instead of that climactic, trial, we get a little courtroom-scene in which nobody wins anything much. And instead of a heavily symbolic conclusion-like the one with which Zola wound up "Germinal"—we get a practi-cal ending that settles the little questions satisfactorily and leaves the hig questions satisfactorily

Certainly "The Camerons" may a remind you of a thousand novels that have been written before But as you are drawn into Mr. " " Crichton's vivid scenes. as you settle into his romantic and wholesomely sentimental proce 19. and as you realize how well he his conventions, you retognize that "The Camerons" is a gem among a thousand rhine. "2" stones—an old-fashioned story that makes dead traditions come to life egain, an old chestnut that seems warm end savory once more.

Morton Can't Win Cowboy Fans

By William N. Wallace NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (NYT) .-The recent appearance of bumper stickers in Dalliss that say "We want Stau-back" must make Craig Morton feel grand. What more does a person have to do to be accepted? When Roger Staubach, the Cowboys' Super Bowl quarterback, chose to take on Marlin McKeever of the Rams in a collision last Aug. 12 and came out of it with a shoulder separation Morton took over. The Cowboys continued to win most of their games, in syste of a defense that may be wearing down, and they seem certain to make the playoffs. But Morton cannot put a constituency together among the fans, the press or, one suspects, his own coaches and teammates. He seems cursed by events not of his own making. The time of crisis nears. The Cowboys play the Washington Redskins on Dec. 9 to settle the National Conference's Eastern Division title, Because of their good records, both will likely qualify for the playoffs. Who will be the Cowboys' quarterback, Stanbach or Morton?

The Pressure Game It will be hard for Coach Tom Landry to lift Morton for a rusty Stanbach, throwing Craig on the scrap heap once more, So far, interceptions. Not bad.

Yet Morton has buckled in pressure games, such as the 28-14 loss to Cleveland in 1969, due in part to problems with shoulder and elbow injuries that required surgery. He was the regular be-ginning in 1969 until Landry discarded him for Staubach midway through the 1971 season.

In their lone pressure game this season, the Cowboys lost to the Redskins, but Morton had less to do with that than Calvin Hill who dropped a touchdown pass, or the defense, which gave up a lead.

Morton Predictable

Enemy defenses would rather work against Morton than Staubecause the less mobile Craig never runs with the ball and Roger does, for first downs and sometimes touchdowns. In hig games, any such extra quality is helpful as players, coaches and fans know. Hence the bumper

Unwanted Competitor Rows Into Henley Regatta Time

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—After more than 100 years of splendid isolation, Henley Royal Regatta—that bastion of tradition on the rowing scene—is threatened by a streamlined, upto-the-minute competitor right next door.

Holme Pierrepont, Britain's first championship, multilane course, is open and beckoning the world's top competitors away from the magnificent tree-lined tranquillity of Henley into the

The first international regatia at Holme Plerrepont will be held June 30 to July 1, the weekend before Henley's 1973 swing down the historic River Thames.

This is the period when, in previous years, crews from around the world have gathered in front of Henley's blue and white-striped boat tents in preparation for the time-honored battles. Also scheduled for that weekend next year are Henley's preliminary races and the annual church service, all part of the build-up to the strawberries and cream and the sweat and tears. On top of all this, the draw, that nail-biting affair for crews and coaches in Henley's sudden-death head-to-head affair, takes place July 1.

Renley officials complained that the timing of Holme Pierrepont's international birth was unfortunate to say the least. They fear that top crews will be sidetracked from Henley to the brash newcomer located a mere 190 miles away in the English Midlands. Holme Pierrepont, on the other hand, has valuable sponsorship to consider. The opening, of course, is timed to coincide with European tours by American crews. # A Shocking Tale

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON.—The extraor-dinary events at the Bertle an electric toothbrush. household began innocently enough several years ago when Martha Bertle gave her husband, Ted, an electric razor.

Thay can't even remember now whether it was a birthday or a Christmas present. In any event, Ted Bertle countered quickly on the next giftgiving occasion by giving Martha an electric carving knife. It should be clear, of course, that before this exchange, which the Bertles now regard as the take-off point, they had already purchased, over the years, an electric stove, an electric refrigerator, an electric television set, three electric clocks, two electric 11:-conditioners, an electric freezer, an electric clothes-washingand-drying unit, three electric racios and a large number of electric lamps.

Also an electric stereo system. And an electric slide projector. And an electric toaster.

The electric train that Ted Bertle's parents had given him one boylood Christmas was also in the house, as were Ted's electric saw and an electric sander and Martba's electric vacuum

It was not particularly surprising then that after Ted Bertle, on the occasion of their wedding anniversary, gave Martha an electric burglar alarm system for the bouse, electricians had to be called to deal with frequent power failures. Eventually they ran more lines into the house.

Thus strengthened for the long haul, the Bertles bought an electric dishwasher, On Father's Day, although Ted Bertle was not yet a father, Martha gave Ted an electric guitar, a sort of musical return for the electric organ Ted had given her on Mother's Day.

With the Pourth of July, Ted replied by giving Martha a pair of electric scissors and an electric sewing machine,

For several days, they were content simply to glare at each other, but in late July Martha Ted was silent for more than two weeks. Then, on Aug. 15, Napoleon's hirthda). Ted sur-prised Martha with an electric griddle, an electric mixing bowl, an electric frying pan, an electric rotisserie-broiler, an electric coffee pot and an electric tray for keepling food warm on the sideboard

Martha became sullen and uncommunicative, On Labor Day, she gave Ted an electric blanket. but Ted, who had been expecting something like this, was ready for her.

He immediately retorted with an electric can opener, an electric food blender, an electric coffee grinder, an electric hot-dog cooking machine and a beautifu' electric cut-glass decanter imported from Schenectady.

Martha stayed in her room refusing to see anyone, until Veterans Day, when she surprised Ted with an electric radio-cassette-recorder-player, an electric typewriter, an electric shoe polsher and a bound volume of advertisements by their local electric company on the joys of "electric living."

On Thanksgiving Day, whila carving the turkey with his electric knife. Ted Bertle was severely shocked by the electric wishbone. which had not been perfected yet and still had bugs in it. He was taken to the hospital and subjected to a long, humiliating course of therapy before it was safe for anyone to touch him without wearing rubber gloves.

When Martha Bertle was admitted to the hospital for tha birth of their first child. Ted was not allowed to visit the maternity ward because he still sizzled and crackled so loudy that it woke the other babies. For this reason, he did not learn until Martha cama bome that he had become the father of an electric son, who requires a change of fuses with each fresh diaper.

With what modern technology has learned about extension cords. the child's electrician assures the Bertles, there is no reason wby he cannot live a perfectly normal life, provided he is careful Dot to get rained upon,

The happy Ted and Martha have already given him an electric teddy bear,

A Mayan Rescue Mission

By John Sibley

NEW YORK (NYT).—The artifacts of allcient Mays, hidden under dense jungle growth in Guatemala and Mexico's Yucatan area, have become the cause celebre of an international rescue mission.

An intensified drive to halt the pillaging of the ancient Central American civilization has been announced here by a small assemblage of archaeologists, international lawyers and art lovers at the Center for Inter-American Relations.

ducted by Karl E. Meyer, a journalist, who toured the area last February and March under a grant from the center. The looting of archaeological aites has surged in recent years, Mr. Meyer reported Tuesday and-pronically-haz become more profitable for the illicit operators as a result of new Mexican and Guatemalan laws to thwart them.

Gunfights

During the past 10 years, experts agreed, the Mayan ruins have increasingly become the scenes of confrontations -sometimes gunfights among legitimate archaeologists, police, looters, and native guerrillas who are available for hire to the best-paying members of the other groups.

"In the name of art, we are now seeing men being ed," said Ian Graham, a British authority on Mayan culture who is now associated with Harvard University's Penbody Museum. The most valuable pieces of archaeological booty today,

Mr. Meyer said, are Mayan stelae, huge stone slabs covered with hieroglyphics and sculpture in relief that once adorned Citing a typical situation, the Meyer report said: "All together, including wages and bribes, a looter can bring out a stela for under $1,000. Once at a port, the fragments can be shipped as commercial freight, or trucked up to Mexico City under a load of fruit. "Once in Mexico City or New York, the stolen monument passes to a dealer with established contacts among museums and collectors." Both Mexico and Guatemala, the conferees noted, have now enacted laws declaring all archaeological discoveries within their boundaries to be the property of the country. and prohibiting their exportation without government per-

U.S. Law

Even more recently-just two weeks ago-President Nixon signed into law a bill that explicitly forbids the import into the United States of Mayan stone carving, as well as all pre-Columbian "material of architectural or sculptural consequence," without the permission of the country of origin. None of these legal moves, however, has proved entirely effective, the exports here agreed. In fact, by tightening security at borders, they have served only to raise the blackmarket price of Mayan artifacts in the United States, where

PEOPLE:

Britain's Princess Anne, 22, already recognized as a horsewom-

an, is getting a reputation among some policemen as a car jockey. Police officials said yesterday they may prosecute Anna

on speeding charges, It would be the first prosecution of a mem-sports car, similar to the one given to her by her parents for her 21st birthday. It was lent to her by a garage while her own car was being repaired. "A report has been submitted in the normal way." a police spokeaman said.

"She should be treated like any other motorist involved in speeding offenses." The spokesman said the final decision on prosecution rests with the chief constable of the area northwest of London where she was stopped. A Buck-

Two more of Queen Elizabeth's relatives were also in trouble with the law yesterday. Her uncle, Earl Mountbatten of Burms, was fined for watering the milk down on his farm. Her cousin, the Earl of Lichfield, had his driving license suspended for using his Rolls after drinking. Mount-batten's case was heard by magistrates at Romsey in Hampshire where the 71-year-old former admiral farms with a nephew. He was not in court and the farm is run by a manager.

For the second day in a row. long unheard-from Evz. Gabor, 50, youngest of the sisters, appears here. Yesterday she was divorcing Richard Brown, husband No. 4. Today she's kicking off a no-smoking drive called "I Ouit," simed at motivating smokers to quit and nonsmokers not to start. At a New York news conference sponsored by the American Cancer Society, she said, among other things, "Smoking is bad for glamour and that's something I think women are very much concerned about.
